Leon van Schaik and SueAnne Ware with Colin Fudge and Geoffrey London Volume One Contributors: Benedict Anderson, Suzie Attiwill, Nigel Bertram, Richard Black, Stephen Collier, Graham Crist, Harld Fallon, Arnaud Hendrickx, Paul Minifie, Vivian Mitsogianni, Stephen Neille, Jon Tarry, Jo Van Den Berge, Gretchen Wilkins http://www.blurb.com/b/5627774-the-practice-of-spatial-thinking
7:00pm	Guest Lecture followed by Panel Discussion Multipurpose Room – Design Hub, Building 100, level 1	Richard Blythe Dean, School of Architecture and Design, RMIT Title Three Orders of Design Knowledge Abstract This lecture will draw on observations of both the RMIT and ADAPTr program and the research conducted within them to identify key elements of this approach to doctoral training and to point to key training techniques and research methods used. The lecture will move step by step through a typical candidature pointing to specific examples to illustrate how successful candidates have approached the process and demonstrating the kinds of knowledge produced. The lecture will conclude by outlining three possible orders of knowledge at play in practice based research, a model that is potentially useful for every candidate and practice based researcher, and with some speculations about value and implications of the approach for the future university. The move to re-centre research in the studios of ventures practices can be seen as a radical new model for a 'cloud' like university or research entity.
