organized for Dottorato di Ricerca Teorie e Progetto, by Prof. Orazio Carpenzano, President of the Faculty of Architecture/ La Sapienza University in collaboration with Dir. Charlotte Bundgaard, Accademia di Danimarca.

After working remotely for so long, corporations worldwide give up the workspaces for their employees. Is this the end of the office as a building typology? How have revolutionary office buildings of the 20th century evolved? Which concepts, configurations and materials endured and why? Using before/after photography, archival documents and interviews with CEOs, architects, facility managers, maintenance and cleaning crews the book not only provides a fascinating visual history of this building type, but informs about the development of iconic office spaces over time.
